In Loving Memory of Philip Keating

Philip M. Keating

This space in our Annual Report is normally taken up by parting remarks from our outgoing Chair. In lieu of such remarks, we are reprinting the press release sent by member law firm Bean, Kinney & Korman, where 2010 Chamber Chair Phil Keating practiced.

Bean Kinney mourns the loss of friend and colleague Philip Keating

It is with deepest sadness that Bean, Kinney & Korman informs our community that our friend and colleague Philip M. Keating passed away suddenly Tuesday night, at the age of 51. Phil joined Bean Kinney in 2004, and was a shareholder of the firm with a successful employment and immigration law practice. Phil was deeply involved in the Arlington community and was the 2010 Chairman of the Arlington Chamber of Commerce. He was well known by many in this community for his gracious demeanor, terrific sense of humor and genuine personality. He was also a prominent contributor to his practice area, presenting often to audiences throughout the region and having published numerous articles on related topics.

Phil was a native of New Jersey. He earned his B.A. from Rutgers and received his J.D. with honors from George Washington University. He was married with three children. “Phil was a very positive person; he had a great sense of humor and it was a pleasure to work with him every day,” said Leo Fisher, managing shareholder at Bean, Kinney & Korman. “He was just one of the kindest people you know.”

Phil's absence will be profoundly evident and he will be sincerely missed by all who knew him.

2011 Chair's Message

Michael Foster

Our Friend Lives On

The business of life carries on, albeit on a somber note in the loss of a good friend of mine and to the community. Last year's Arlington Chamber Chairman, Phil Keating, is remembered by the love, and dedication he had for his family, law practice, and so many aspects of this community, including the Chamber. We are all better for his life in ours. In every event, program, and initiative we engage in this year, we remember his contributions of intellect, compassion, and the pure enjoyment he found in life. His impact and contributions cannot be measured in his brief time with us, but will be measured for generations to come through his family, his love, leadership, and the example he set. We will all work harder to honor his involvement in the community, the Chamber and in our lives.

The Chamber year continues and is in full swing. The Chamber Gala held in January once again earned the accolade of Arlington's Best Night Out, and a truly great time was had by all. Everyone enjoyed a fabulous night with great friends, music, food, drink and a wide array of silent auction selections. Thank you to those who joined us and to the sponsors who made the event possible. Many thanks and congratulations go to Rich, Kate, Erica, Deborah, Tami, Gaby and Susan for their heroic efforts, and to co-chairs John Murphy and Brian Steffan for the success of this great event.

Despite the trying times experienced by both business and government over the past few years, the Chamber continues to build on the many accomplishments during that time. Whenever something seemed challenging, my grandmother would often say adversity builds character and that character will carry us through; sometimes difficult times help us to better prioritize our most important relationships. In business we understand how the integrity and synergy of relationships with our colleagues, constituents and customers affect us, and can carry us through good times as well as bad. The chamber works hard to build and maintain productive relationships among Arlington businesses and government to improve the marketplace in the community for all. In almost everything we do, and almost everything you will read about in this issue, there are vital opportunities to support and be a part of these great relationships and values.

Over the last several years we have experienced a heightened awareness about the synergy between government and business. For some this has been a positive, even critical, relationship for survival. For others it has added even more costly regulatory challenges not present before. In many ways government has come to more fully recognize the vital role a healthy business environment plays in the overall health of the community, and in particular the importance of job sustainment and creation in sustaining the services, programs, education and physical environment we all enjoy and rely on. The ideal balance is naturally different in various industries, so we need to be intentional about how and where we emphasize advocacy in the best interest of our membership and community. The time to strengthen these relationships is now.

The Chamber Government Affairs and Economic Development Committee is hard at work and welcomes your involvement. February also kicks off the Opportunity Works campaign, which engages the community in support of activities and provides many fun and productive venues for involvement. Please be on the lookout for ways you can share your talents and benefit most from your membership.

"Their Chamber representatives are extremely involved in the Chamber as supporters of events and programs." Development Manager, Kevin Shooshan, along with John Shooshan and Kelly Shooshan, accepted the award on their behalf. Kevin also serves as the Director of the Chamber's Board and Chair of the Green Business Committee. 2010 President's Award: Sponsored by Comcast Ron Novak

The President's Award is given to a member individual deemed to have made significant contributions to the Chamber over the past year. Each winner has, in his or her own way, found a means to make a difference to Chamber members. Chamber President Rich Doud presented Ron Novak, Vice President of Segue Technologies, with the 2010 President's Award. "There is no hard and fast criteria. Those who are likely to earn the President's Award just stand out. I have never needed to go through any long evaluation process, and the tradition continues this year," said Doud. Novak has been a leader in recruiting members and was one of the top producers in this year's Opportunity Works Campaign. Congratulations to our 2010 President's Award recipient, Ron Novak!

2010 Committee of the Year Award: Sponsored by Dominion Membership Development Committee

The Committee of the Year Award recognizes the committee that has done an exceptional job of executing the mission of the Chamber membership and the Arlington business community and serves the interest of the committee members. The 2010 Committee of the Year was awarded to the Membership Development Committee. This past year, the Membership Development Committee sponsored twenty new members, which represents about 20% of the total new members for 2010. "Committee members have been instrumental in both bringing outside contacts into the Chamber and to Chamber events as well as helping with prospective members who find the Chamber on their own," said Board Chair Philip Keating. Arianna Gleckel, Chair of the Membership Development Committee accepted the award. "The members of the membership development committee worked hard this year to both reinvigorate a committee that had a two year hiatus and to bring in new members in a tough economy. The committee succeeded in both goals and I am very appreciative of their efforts and commitment to help this chamber continue to grow and do business together," said Gleckel. Congratulations to the Membership Development Committee!
